Many a Friend Recommends have enough potato vines at the present time to supply at least a good basket full each night to his milk cows. If your vines are properly cut from the patch your production of sweet potatoes will not be greatly affected. If you wait too late to begin feeding your potato vines you will find that you have more vines than you can feed which means a loss. And it is also time to begin feeding citrons. If you have an ample supply of citrons you may begin gathering the largest ones at the present time
